Welcome to the University of Alberta — a leader in teaching, research and community service.

Welcome to the University of Alberta — a leader in teaching, research and community service.

Wherever I travel in Alberta and beyond, I find overwhelming evidence of the University of Alberta's success in teaching, research, and community service. These successes are clearly evident in the contributions the university makes to the people, the cultural life, and the economy of Alberta. We have good reason to be proud of the accomplishments of our alumni, students, staff, and faculty; and of the wide and beneficial impact of the activities of the university locally, nationally, and internationally.

These successes cause me to reflect on the wisdom of our first Premier, Alexander Cameron Rutherford, and his colleagues who, in spite of all the short run imperatives of the day, insisted that among the first acts of the new legislature would be an act to create the University of Alberta. In doing so, they set in motion the building of an institution that would yield lifelong benefits to all Albertans, including the education of the leaders of tomorrow. With the vision of a province that not only recognized but valued access to postsecondary education for its citizens, they built an educational foundation that has proven itself integral in developing the knowledge-based economy that is critical to our province today.

The Province of Alberta will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 2005. The vision our forebears had and the investments they made have provided a solid foundation for Alberta. We should not forget the simple wisdom of those times. Your decision to consider studies at the University of Alberta tells me the wisdom of Premier Rutherford has not been lost on you.

Sincerely,

Roderick D Fraser, PhD
President

Important Notice

By the act of registering for a course of study, each student at the University of Alberta agrees to observe and be bound by the terms of this notice, and the terms, conditions, academic standards, rules, regulations, policies, and codes of behavior contained or referenced in the Calendar. Therefore, it is the student’s responsibility to make himself or herself aware of the contents of the Calendar.

The Calendar sets forth the intention of the University at the time the Calendar was prepared. The publication of information in the Calendar or in other documents relating to admission and registration does not bind the University to provide the courses, programs, schedule of studies, or facilities referenced in the documents. The University of Alberta reserves the right, subject to the authority of General Faculties Council, to make whatever changes it considers necessary to the information referenced in the Calendar or referenced in other documents relating to admission and registration. The right of the University to make changes includes, but is not limited to, the elimination of or changes to the following: programs, organizational structure, courses, course sections, course content, course schedules, course locations, instructors assigned to particular courses, tuition and fees, entrance standards, academic standards, degree requirements, University policies, regulations, and rules. All of the changes referred to above may be made by the University without notice to students or prospective students. The University is not liable to anyone who may suffer any loss or damages of any type arising from such changes including any loss or damages arising from the interruption of academic activities.
International Students: Sharing and Learning
Currently, international students attending the U of A come from 130 countries. These students are “living resources” on-campus—they help increase our understanding of global issues while contributing to the University community through sharing ideas and perspectives. One sharing vehicle is “Bridges: Student Speakers for Global Awareness,” a speakers bureau consisting of students (international students and Canadian students with international experience) who make regional and topical presentations by drawing on their personal experiences. Canadian students also get the opportunity to be matched with the incoming students through the “Peer Leader program,” helping them to adjust to life in Canada and organizing social and recreational activities.

Transitions: International Student Orientation
The International Centre works with international students through their transition process with a reception service, the International Student Handbook (available online) and an annual three-day orientation program. The goals of the comprehensive orientation include answering concerns, getting to know other people on campus and beginning the process of community building.

Study Abroad!
The U of A has exchanges with institutions in more than 50 countries. Student exchanges offer opportunities to experience a different culture first-hand, often while working toward a degree at the U of A. Exchange students pay fees and tuition to the U of A and can, in many cases, receive credit for course work at the host university. Attend one of the regularly-scheduled information sessions to discover how you can go abroad.

Have an International Education
The Directory of Resources for a Global Education at the U of A helps students create their own international education program, with a focus on the developing South and human rights. The Directory available online is a compilation of the U of A’s resources with a global focus, including courses, faculty and student groups.

International Week: Celebrate!
International Week, the largest annual on-campus extracurricular event, features presentations, fairs and displays, and explores local and international perspectives on global issues. International Week is held during the second term.

International Student Groups
There are numerous student groups on campus that have ethnocultural or issue-specific foci. Check at the International Centre or contact the Students’ Union, Student Groups, 040V SUB, phone (780) 492-9789 for information.

The U of A in Cooperation with Other Countries
The U of A works with educational institutions, industry and government in many countries in the world. Partnerships take the form of research linkages, exchanges and professional and community development. Academic divisions focusing on international studies include Canadian Centre for Austrian and Central European Studies, Canadian Circumpolar Institute, Canadian Institute for Nordic Studies, Canadian Institute of Ukrainian Studies, Centre for International Business Studies, Centre for International Education and Development, East Asian Studies, Faculty of Extension English Language Program, Modern Languages and Comparative Studies, and Research Institute for Comparative Literature.

Finding Out More...
Information on the University’s international programs, services and activities is available on-line at www.international.ualberta.ca or through e-mail at international@ualberta.ca. The International Centre (international student services and programs, student exchanges, and global education) is located at 172 HUB International, sidewalk level 9101 of HUB Mall. The International Programs and International Relations Offices are located at 1204 College Plaza (8215-112 Street).
“Students at the University of Alberta are encouraged to participate in international opportunities – whether they take place on campus or abroad. Take the challenge – learn about the world!”

— Dr. Brian Stevenson, Associate Vice-President (International), University of Alberta
