As the newest Faculty at the University of Alberta, Augustana is also one of the oldest educational institutions in the province. Augustana was founded as Camrose Lutheran College in 1910 by an association of Norwegian immigrant congregations. In its early years, it was primarily a high school recognized for the quality of its academic program and its endeavour to provide an education that extended beyond the intellect to “the heart and its affections.” The College began offering university courses in the fall of 1959 as an affiliated college of the University of Alberta, and added a second year of university transfer in 1969. It became a university college in 1985, when its first B.A. degrees were granted. Augustana took its present name in 1991. The name refers to a Lutheran confession published in Augsburg in 1536, which became known more commonly in Scandinavia as “the Augustana.”

At the time Augustana University College officially merged with the University of Alberta, on July 1, 2004, it granted baccalaureate degrees in arts, sciences, music, and management.

Augustana Faculty is committed to building on its reputation for rigorous, high-quality teaching. It offers small classes and personal attention from professors who are passionate about what they teach and who exemplify the kind of inquiry, creativity, and critical ethical reflection that they encourage of students. Augustana is also known for its experiential learning opportunities, internationally and in wilderness settings, and its fine arts, Nordic sports, and campus life programs. It is proud of its rural location, but its student body is drawn from across Alberta, Canada, and the world.

Augustana Faculty teaches about 1000 undergraduate students on picturesque residential campus in the small city of Camrose, 90 km southeast of Edmonton.
